INTERACTIVE ETHICS WORKSHOP

SECTION LEADER: LANCE E. KESSLER

DESCRIPTION
The Interactive Ethics Workshop explores many of the ethical issues facing bankers today. This course focuses on the importance of personal standards and how they can be applied to ethical dilemmas in the workplace through an easy-to-use ethical decision-making model. This model is applied to real-life ethical scenarios through interactive discussion. The course will help students determine how to apply their value systems to ethical dilemmas that confront them in their lives.

Topics covered in this course include:
- Why a workshop in ethics?
- What is ethics?
- The importance of standards
- Easy-to-use ethical decision-making model
- Applying your standards to real-life ethical dilemmas (interactive discussions)
- Action-oriented decisions to ethical dilemmas
- Guidelines to ethical decision making

PURPOSE
People are facing many ethical challenges in today's work environment and in their lives in general. This course is designed to help participants be better prepared to effectively handle ethical dilemmas based on their value systems. The course provides participants with the tools to help them know how to handle ethical dilemmas.

OBJECTIVES
After successfully completing this course, students will be able to:
- Develop greater sensitivity to the ethical problems encountered in the workplace.
- Gain a clearer understanding of what is right and what is wrong for them based on their individual value systems.
- Provide a framework for confronting and rationally resolving ethical dilemmas in the workplace and in life in general.